STAART

GALLERY

If you haven't stopped by Staart recently, there are some new pieces on display by three of the gallery's artists. Harald Aksdal, Mary Ann Duffy Go-din, and Tinka Theresa Martel recently added new work to their ongoing displays.

Harald's display has shifted from some of his smaller original pen and ink and watercolor pieces to one strikingly large painting titled "Faire Thee Well." It's worth a visit just to ponder the painstaking detail evident in the piece.

Mary Ann has a new watercolor still life titled "Little Miss Molly" in which she continues to explore combinations of vintage clothing, flowers and text.

Tinka has added a new twist to her mixed media abstractions by adding organic elements like leaves and flower petals in four new pieces on display. The organic elements combine well with her use of materials like handmade paper, copper and paint.
